There will be a strong break made for the temperance bill in the Legislature this session. That influence led to the nomination of Bradford for speaker.

General Grant has formally accepted the presidency of the world's fair commission. The fair will be held in 1883 at New York. It will cost about four million dollars.

This is just about the position the Democrats in Congress are in: "By opposing solidly the retirement of General Grant the Democrats declare their conviction that the war of the Rebellion was a war against the Democratic party."

The Democrats do not seem anxious to organize any more special investigating committees. Their days of sniffing after the Republican trails are over. They have had enough of fishing for Republican thieves and catching Democratic thieves.

The Chicago Journal takes this view of the senatorial question: "The contest over the Wisconsin senatorship continues. The chances appear to be about equal between Keyes and Sawyer. The latter has the most money, and the former the most fitness."

In the work of distributing rewards, General Garfield should not forget Wisconsin. There are some pretty strong reasons why this State should have a place in the cabinet of the incoming administration, and the least selfish of all the reasons is that there is first-class timber in the State for cabinet officers.

General Garfield is advised to ignore the leaders of the factions who opposed his nomination at Chicago. We don't think General Garfield will do this, and certainly he cannot afford to do it. Some of the best men in the Republican party voted for other candidates, and they bore a noble part in supporting him during the last campaign. These men are the leaders of the Republican party, stalwart and true, and he cannot afford to turn a cold shoulder to them in distributing the offices.

Sara Bernhardt has already given six performances in Chicago, and the nightly receipts have been as follows:

Monday, "Adrienne Lecocq"	$3,465
Tuesday, "From Front"	3,425
Wednesday, "The Sphinx"	2,651
Thursday, "Camille"	4,472
Friday, "The Sphinx"	2,651
Saturday, "From Front"	3,572

Never in the history of Chicago has an actor or an actress drawn so much money for one week as Mile. Bernhardt. As a comparison between her first week in other cities, we give the following, which will show that Chicago is not far behind: New York, $23,022; Boston, $21,532; and Philadelphia, $25,620. She has given six performances in America, and the receipts have been $227,409.

For some time past the Democrats in Congress have given the public to believe that they would order an investigation of the Morey letter, and the circumstances of its use as a campaign document. This was proposed to be done with a view of justifying the Democratic National committee and leaders in their endorsement and circulation of it. But the more they think about it, the more they don't want to investigate, and so the scheme was totally abandoned. It would be a good thing for the Republican party if that investigation could be made. The history of that whole business would show up Barham and the committee in an interesting light. The Democratic leaders know this fact and therefore will let all thought of an investigation drop.

The election of John Sherman to the United States Senate was a handsome thing for the Legislature of Ohio to do. It is a credit to that State, to the party, and to the Nation. He has already spent twenty-two years in Congress. He was elected in 1854 to the House of Representatives, and served six years, and in the great contest for speaker in 1891, he came within two votes of being elected. In 1892 he was re-elected to Congress for the fourth time, but in 1891, when Mr. Chase resigned his seat in the Senate to go into Lincoln's cabinet as secretary of the treasury, Mr. Sherman was elected to fill the vacancy. He was re-elected in 1895 for six years more, and in 1873 was elected for the third time, but resigned in 1877 to take the position of secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of President Hayes. He is 57 years old, and thirty years of that have been spent in public life.

Up to this time there are no new developments in the senatorial question. There does not seem to be any change of the figures published in the Gazette on Saturday. The friends of Mr. Sawyer who have conducted the campaign for their chief on the plan of brag and bluster, do not fix his vote on the first ballot as high as they did several days ago. They are a little more moderate, and are becoming convinced that the "bar" has not a clear road to the United States Senate. On the other hand the friends of Mr. Keyes have no occasion to feel discouraged. They have confidence that the Legislature, as between the two prominent candidates, will not make the serious blunder of choosing Mr. Sawyer, simply because he is a man of vast wealth and represents a great corporation. Mr. Keyes is more of a man of the people than Mr. Sawyer, is better fitted for the responsibilities of the senatorial office, and will represent the people more truly than Mr. Sawyer possibly can. These considerations are of sufficient importance to warrant the election of Mr. Keyes. The State can not afford to sacrifice ability, energy, and general efficiency, that money, and money only, may win in the contest.

THE WISCONSIN ELECTORAL VOTE IN 1856.

Some time ago the Gazette published a brief history of the Wisconsin electoral vote in 1856, when the electors failed to meet at Madison on the day specified by law, to cast the vote of the State. There have been many references to this case of late, to show that the Georgia vote of last fall can not be counted for the reason that the electors did not meet on the day prescribed by the law of the United States. The facts in the Wisconsin case are plain enough, so far as the manner in which the vote was cast by the electors, but the part Congress took in the matter is not so definite. In the first place, the first Wednesday of December, 1856—the day on which the electoral votes in all the States were counted—fell upon the 31st of the month. All the colleges in the United States met and voted on that day except that of Wisconsin. The Presidential electors started for Madison in time to reach the capitol by Tuesday night or Wednesday morning, but a terrible snow storm set in before they reached the city and they did not arrive there till Thursday. The vote was counted for General Fremont on Thursday, the 4th, and in preparing the certificate, the electors assigned the cause of the delay.

The next question, was the vote counted by Congress when it met in joint convention in February, 1857? This is a mixed question, and one curiously difficult to answer. The reports of the proceedings do not afford much satisfaction to the mind on that subject. The course pursued, however, is given by the New York Tribune, and seems to have been thus: "The tellers tabulated the votes and drafted a report saying substantially that Buchanan had received 174 votes; and that Fremont had received—including Wisconsin—114 votes; and that the five electors of Wisconsin had voted on the 4th instead of the 3d. But, as the subject had become involved in a controversy, which promised to become heated, the tellers postponed signing the report until the minds of the two houses should be known. One of them read it; and the Vice President then announced the vote, in the same terms. Thereupon arose an earnest debate, which soon wandered from any consideration of Wisconsin's excuse and the propriety of counting her vote, to the higher and general question, often broached since, whether power is by the constitution vested in the Vice President to decide upon the admissibility of questionable votes. The three tellers probably perceived that the position they had impliedly taken in the draft report, as read, that the tellers' report might treat a doubtful vote as countable, was unacceptable to many; at all events, the report which they ultimately signed stood substantially thus: That Buchanan had received 174 votes; that Fremont had received 109 votes; and that the five votes of Wisconsin had been cast on the 4th for Fremont."

A long debate took place on the Wisconsin case both in the Senate and the House after the electoral vote was counted in the joint convention, but after all this neither house was any wiser when it finished than when it began the debate. As to the question whether the Vice President had actually counted the vote of Wisconsin for Fremont, he would give no definite answer. He said the tellers in the joint convention reported that Wisconsin voted for Fremont, also that they voted on the 4th of the month instead of the 3d, and that he simply announced the fact. Some of the Southern leaders said the vote of Wisconsin should not be counted, for the reason that if it was, the precedent would enable a large State to hold her vote and decide the election after she knew how other votes stood. Ex-Governor C. C. Washburn, who was a member of the House at that time, argued in favor of counting the vote, as the electors had made every possible effort to meet on the day specified by law, and the people through an act of God, should not be disadvantaged. The controversy was dropped, and no man to this day knows whether the electoral vote of Wisconsin for 1856, was counted.

YOUNG RUFFIANS.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 16.—As religious services were progressing a night or two since in the church of the Rev. Galen Rigby, at Somerset, Ky., a couple of well-connected young ruffians entered the church, one riding a horse and the other swinging a howling dog by the hind legs. The young man who was mounted whipped his horse down the aisle till in front of the minister, where he denounced him and the congregation in violent and profane language. A scene of excitement followed, and the profane intruders were quickly driven from the church by the members. The episode, however, put an end to the services. The young men were inspired to the exploit by Kentucky whiskey. No arrests.

TANNERY BURNED.

MILWAUKEE, January 16.—A special from Two Rivers, Wis., gives an account of the burning of a large tannery at Two Rivers, owned by Parster & Vogel Leather Company, of Milwaukee. Loss $100,000. It is supposed to be the work of incendiaries.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Special to the Gazette.
MADISON, January 17.—Mrs. Colonel Vetter, of Baraboo, was found dead in her bed this morning, having died from heart disease. Her husband died last summer very suddenly.

THE SENATORIAL SLATE.

Special to the Gazette.
MADISON, Jan. 17.—The trains are loaded with members, and friends of Mr. Keyes and Mr. Sawyer, this morning, and canvassing will be lively from tonight on. The Keyes men claim he is ahead, and the Sawyer men that their chief is ahead. Disinterested parties figure Keyes 45, Sawyer 45, and the balance in the balance.

THE APPOINTMENT.

Special to the Gazette.
MADISON, Jan. 17.—There is likely to be a contest over the appointment of the apportionment committee. It is urged now by the more pacific senators that the best way to settle the whole business is to let the members from each congressional district choose a senator and an assemblyman from their number, which will make a committee of sixteen, and that committee to choose one from the State at large, then the whole committee elect its own chairman. An amendment of this character will doubtless be presented Wednesday, when the resolution comes up for consideration.

THE KEYES CAMP.

MADISON, Jan. 15.—Since Alexander Mitchell, of Milwaukee, the leading Democrat of Wisconsin, and the greatest railroad king in the west, has taken an open hand in the senatorial fight in favor of Mr. Sawyer, there has been a stampede from the ranks of Sawyer's supporters. This wholesale retreat from the free bar, free bar, free railroad ticket candidate, the pine-log statesman from Oshkosh, comprises almost the entire farming and manufacturing elements of the Republican party in the legislature. This is the first time a leading Democrat has ever taken a part in the business of nominating and electing a Republican United States senator or other officer, and the honest and true-blue Republicans are full of suspicion over this peculiar and startling feature of the present senatorial campaign. They felt, and with good reason, that something was wrong, and set about discovering what it was.

Some time ago the howl was raised by the Sawyer organs that Keyes was, or had been, the tool and paid attorney of the railroad corporations, and therefore could not be a safe man for the people in the Senate. This howl was raised for the purpose of prejudicing the former members of the Legislature against Mr. Keyes, and it had something of the desired effect. Now Alexander Mitchell, not only the chief railroad magnate in the west, but the leading Democrat of the State, takes an open, active and strong part in the senatorial fight against Keyes, who had been held up in all possible hideousness by the Sawyerites as a tool of the railroad monopolists, and in favor of Sawyer, who is also, next to Mitchell, the greatest railroad man in Wisconsin.

The granger members understand what this means. They began to open wide their eyes when they arrived in Madison and found the Sawyer headquarters thronged with nothing but representatives of pine land, railroad, canal, land grant and other monopolies. They saw at once he was being supported solely because he represented, and was himself a portion of, the interests of the monopolists.

WISCONSIN DAIRYMEN.

WHITEWATER, January 14.—The following resolutions were passed by the Wisconsin Dairymen's Convention today:

WHEREAS, the dairy interest of Wisconsin has become the leading branch of farm production, and this great interest is seriously menaced and in danger of being ruined by the manufacture of large quantities of oleomargarine, suine, and other adulterations disguised to take the place of genuine butter, which find their way into the general market, and are placed before the consumers as pure; therefore,

Resolved, That in view of these facts, and their bearing on the great interests we represent, this association most earnestly requests, at the hands of the present Legislature, the passage of a law making the vending in a retail way, unless each package is plainly marked as butter, or other pure butter, except salt and coloring matter, a misdemeanor, to be punished by fine and imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court. To make such a law thoroughly effective we further ask that a commission be created, with power to inspect at will any butter or cheese offered for retail sale within the State; and if found adulterated within meaning of such law, then the commission shall prosecute the vendor or vendors of such compound to full extent of such law.

We hereby further declare that the mixing of oleo, lard, or other fats with butter and cheese, and selling the same to the consumers as dairy products, manifestly works great injustice to the dairy interests of this State, which has taken long years of labor and large investments of capital to establish its high reputation we now unquestionably possess for honest dairy products; therefore,

Resolved, That we recommend to every man in this State to dissolve all business relations with every manufacturer or dealer, in this State or elsewhere, known to be engaged in such mixture.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

The Astronomers Interviewed on the Subject.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 16.—An article has been going the rounds of the press announcing the startling prediction that there was great danger of the world coming to an end sometime during this year. This prophecy was a little more definite than the famous one of Mother Shipton, for it detailed the manner in which the earth's destruction was to be accomplished. The Washington Post has taken the trouble to interview the Government astronomers on the subject, and has obtained some interesting information as to the astronomical outlook for the year. The Post says: "Prof. Hull, though able to discover Mars' satellites, has not yet found the comet which is to play such an important part in the destruction of the world. 'It is the first time I have been made aware of the impending danger,' he said."

"Can there be any foundation for such a prediction?" "Only in this: that I have seen somewhere a statement that the comet of 1812 was to return about this time. But we know nothing certain. It is impossible to know anything about comets. We can only observe such a small portion of their immense orbits that we cannot estimate their return with exact precision. But the likelihood of its falling into the sun or striking the earth, even if it did return is infinitesimal."

"Do you think that the earth will ever be struck by a comet?" "There is just about one chance in millions and millions that such a thing will come to pass."

"And if it did?" "In my opinion, no one need fear the consequences in the least. But these matters have always had a strong hold on the public. I remember as far back as 1843 that a great comet was seen in the heavens. By a coincidence, the Millerites about the same time predicted the end of the world. The appearance of the comet made a great many converts to that faith."

"Prof. Eastmans said: 'I do not think that this prediction of the end of the world arose from that source. It is true that some French astronomers who have been studying Encke's comet, which was supposed to have a period of 83.7 years, have announced that it might appear some time within this century. But my idea is, that this article, if it did not originate altogether in some imaginative brain, was based on a statement regarding Swift's comet. It was said that it was moving directly toward the earth.'"

THE LITTLE OLD MAN

'Way up in the Dome.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—There died in this city to-night one of the most curious characters of Washington history. For many years visitors to the National Capitol have noticed, far up in the dome, a little old man with thin, careworn face and long thin, white mutton-chop whiskers, who kept photographic views of the Capitol for sale. This man, Samuel Douglas Wyeth, had a tragical history, the details of which are not fully known. For nearly a quarter of a century he has lived alone here, but a wife and seven children are living in a distant State. His mania has been to lay up a stock of valuable paintings, pictures, busts, vases, and delicate pottery of many kinds, and all sorts of beautiful and costly bric-a-brac.

His garret, which he rented for $3 a month, is literally filled with this collection, which he has made a great sacrifice, hoping, as he has said, that one day, it would descend to his children. One of his pictures is a painting of one of the Popes, and is said to be five centuries old. Large dealers here say it is the most valuable painting in this country. Mr. Wyeth was an authority in the historic places about the city, particularly about the capitol building. Some years ago he wrote a book called "The Federal City," parts of which are said to be unequalled by any other publication of the kind for accuracy of information. His description and history of the Congressional Library is said to be the best extant. Besides his collection of bric-a-brac, he left no resources. To-day, when Mr. Wyeth found himself dying, he sent several telegrams to his family, begging them to come to his relief before he died, but they refused. They have sent word however, that they will come after he is dead.

A REMARKABLE MAN.

COLDWATER, Mich., Jan. 13.—This city possesses quite a remarkable man in the person of the Rev. Allen Tibbitts, who came to Michigan in 1824, and to Coldwater in 1831. In July of that year he preached the first sermon—in his own house—ever preached here. He is in his 77th year, and narrates the following record of his life: "I never swore an oath, or took a chew of tobacco, or smoked a whole cigar. 'I never bought or sold a drink of whisky or brandy for myself. I never owned or carried a pistol. I never owned a kite or played a game of marbles. In a travel of over 100,000 miles by public conveyances, I never met with an accident or was a moment out of place when it depended upon my own exertion. I never sang a song, or played a game of checkers, billiards, or croquet, or any game of cards. I never skated a rod, or struck a man a blow with my fist. I can repeat more of the Bible than any man living of whom I have any knowledge. I have given instruction to 200,000 pupils. I am the only one alive of the persons who composed the first church in this city and county. I have given away more real estate to Coldwater than all its other inhabitants. I preached for 15 years, and traveled more than 500 miles, attending funerals; and all the salary I ever received was a pound of tea, worth 75 cents."

Besides this record, of his own, he has spent 21 years in traveling and lecturing in almost every State in the Union east of the Mississippi, and in Upper and Lower Canada. In all these years he has increased in wealth, and is now surrounded by his children and his children's children, living in the enjoyment of a ripe old age.

 Return when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is systematically used by a bilious dyspeptic sufferer. Moreover, since the brain sympathizes closely with the stomach and its associated organs, the liver and the bowels, as their derangement is rectified by the action of the Bitters, mental despondency produced by that derangement disappears.

FOR SALE!
 Offer for sale 110 acres of choice Wood Land in town of Janesville. The land is adjacent to the river and about four miles from the city, and easy access by boat or wagon. The property will only be sold entire, as it is too large to look after small lots. This is a rare opportunity for several gentlemen to club together and buy a wood lot. Every farmer should have a wood lot. Wood will always command a large price in the Janesville market, and its value will increase from year to year.

Price low and terms easy. For further information call on Judge H. Barker, town of Janesville, or address the undersigned.
